

Longer, wider, roomier, and more muscular wheel designs with sharper edges instead of the soft rounded forms. The new redesigned Mercedes M class is clearly different and more appealing. The new M class rides on air suspension equipped with a standard Adaptive Damping System (ADS) that automatically adjusts suspension responding to road and driving conditions. All four wheels of the M class are driven by a seven-speed driver interactive transmission with shift buttons on the steering wheel. The two models that will be offered at Mercedes-Benz of Houston North (I-45 North and FM 1960) are the ML350 and ML 500, with the AMG version of the M-class arriving shortly.
